

The authors

Wolfgang Blaas

Wolfgang Blaas is an economist and has retired from the Vienna University of Technology in 2012. He is currently giving courses on Economic Policy and International Economics at the University of Vienna.

wolfgang.blaas@tuwien.ac.at

Judith Clifton

Judith Clifton is Professor at the Faculty of Business and Economic Sciences, University of Cantabria. She is also Editor-in-Chief of Journal of Economic Policy Reform and serves on the editorial board of Utilities Policy, Cambridge Journal of Regions, Economy, Cambridge Elements in Public Policy, Policy & Society and so on. She has published dozens of papers in leading international journals including J. of European Public Policy, J. of Regulatory Economics, Regional Studies, and others. Her research interests lie in examining the origins, determinants and consequences of policy, both public and economic.

judith.clifton@unican.es

Svenja Flechtner

Svenja Flechtner is an economist. She is currently a Post-Doc research assistant at the Institute for Latin American Studies at Freie Universität Berlin. Her research focuses on questions of economic and human development in the context of socio-economic inequalities. She is also interested in interdisciplinary collaboration between economists and other social scientists.

svenja.flechtner@fu-berlin.de

Michael Getzner

Michael Getzner is professor of public finance and infrastructure economics and chair of the Department of Spatial Planning (TU Wien). His special interest lies in ecological economics, public finance, and infrastructure policy.

michael.getzner@tuwien.ac.at

Gerlinde Gutheil-Knopp-Kirchwald

Gerlinde Gutheil-Knopp-Kirchwald is researcher at the Austrian Federation of Limited-Profit Housing Associations, Department of Housing Economics and Research. She holds a PhD in Urban and Regional Planning. Her main research interests are comparative policy analyses and the socio-spatial dimensions of housing.

ggutheil@gbv.at

Lukas Haffert

Lukas Haffert is a comparative political economist. He is a senior researcher at the University of Zurich and currently John F. Kennedy Memorial Fellow at Harvard University's Center for European Studies. His research interests include the politics of fiscal policy and processes of institutional change.

haffert@ipz.uzh.ch

Ian Koetsier

Ian Koetsier is a PhD candidate at Utrecht University in the Netherlands. He is part of the chair Public Sector Economics. His dissertation focuses on implicit government obligations. The study he is presenting here, looks at the fiscal costs of large natural disasters and the development of these costs over time.

i.koetsier@uu.nl

Dieter Plehwe

Dieter Plehwe is a political scientist and senior fellow at the Berlin Social Science Center. He has held teaching positions at Yale University and the University of Vienna as well as visiting fellowships at the International Center for Advanced Studies at New York University and at the Harvard Center for European Studies.

He is a general editor of the Journal of Critical Policy Studies. His research interests are mainly in the field of comparative capitalism, neoliberalism studies and the history of economic ideas.

dieter.plehwe@wzb.eu

Wilfried Schönböck

Wilfried Schönböck studied economics at the University of Vienna. Ph. D. 1978. From 1985 until 2009 he was head of the Center of Public Finance and Infrastructure Policy at the Department of Spatial Planning, Vienna University of Technology. At present lecturer there. Focus points in research and publications: Public Finance and Infrastructure Economics, especially public budgets at different levels of the State; fiscal federalism; health, transport, water, waste disposal and environmental economics.

wilfried.schoenbaeck@tuwien.ac.at

Grazia Withalm

Grazia Withalm is a spatial planner and currently works as an university assistant at the Department of Spatial Planning at the TU Wien. Her research concentrates on nature conservation planning, protected areas and ecological economics.

grazia.withalm@tuwien.ac.at